TOWN COUNCIL IN SESSION

QUESTION OF STREET IMPROVEMENT DISCUSSED.

Water in Fire Engine Kept Warm Considered and Fire Plug Ordered for Steinwehr Avenue.

The Town Council had a special session on Tuesday evening of last week with all members present but one. The fixing of the tax rate was postponed until Tuesday night of this week when another special meeting will be held.

Letter of W. S. Dutera was read complaining of the bad condition of the alley in rear of Steinwehr avenue. Mr. Dutera sent another letter in the matter of getting stone for the streets from a point near Fairfield and Highway Committee was directed to look up the matter.

Councilman Armor reported several hundred tons of stone were at the Bender quarry belonging to Contractor Farrell and that the stone could be had for 90 cents a perch at the quarry. Councilman Tawney was of the opinion that the stone were too large and that the cost of hauling them to town would make them too expensive.

The question of condition of the streets was discussed. Burgess Holzworth recommended that some form of permanent street paving should be decided upon and that the council ought to build as much each year as the finances of the town would permit. That a square a year ought to be undertaken if no more could be put down.

Councilman Trostle believed that the finances of the town would not permit any paving at this time and he suggested that the property owners along the streets should take up the subject, that the owners would find their properties increased in value by paving and hence should pay the greater part of the expense of paving.

R. E. Wible, Esq., borough attorney, reported that an ordinance had been prepared providing for the contract for electric lights for next five years, in accordance with the bid of Keystone Light Co., which had been accepted. That the ordinance had been submitted to the Light Co. and would be ready for action of Council at an early date.

Charles Strasbaugh, proprietor of the Washington House was present and complained of the condition of sewer pipes under Western Maryland railroad tracks. That they had clogged and sewage had flooded his property three times, each time causing him much expense. He called attention to the contract with the town to stand any expense caused by sewer in return for right of way through his property. In the discussion that followed it was said all kinds of matter was thrown into the sewer, that bottles, whole chickens and other things, had been found in the pipes at various times. The difficulty in the Strasbaugh matter was referred to the Sewer Committee.

Fire Marshall McClellan appeared in behalf of the Gettysburg Fire Company, asking that warm water be kept in the fire engine. The subject was discussed at some length and finally referred to the Property Committee.

Mr. McClellan also spoke of the need of fire plug on Steinwehr avenue. Councilman Beck moved that the Property Committee be instructed to place a fire plug on that street and carried.

Councilman Armor briefly reported of the work done by the committee appointed to look into the matter of securing registration boxes for police so that Burgess may know that officers are covering regular beats at stated intervals. On motion of Councilman Kitzmiller it was requested that Councilman Armor and his committee get further information and report at an early meeting.

Council then adjourned to meet in special session Tuesday evening of this week.

Like Finding Money.

L. M. Buehler, the popular druggist is making an offer that is just like finding money for he is selling a regular 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half-price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is only recently, through solicitation of Druggist L. M. Buehler that this medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents. He urged the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, specks before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Howard's specific will cure all these troubles. But if by any chance it should not, L. M. Buehler will return your money.

REMODELED EAGLE HOTEL

TO PUT HOTEL IN A FIRST-CLASS UP-TO-DATE CONDITION.

Thousands of Dollars are Being Spent by the Proprietor in the Remodeling

Visitors to Gettysburg this summer who have on previous visits made the Eagle Hotel their headquarters, will find a new and remodeled Eagle Hotel, far superior to the hotel it has been in the past.

Since March 1st the proprietor and owner, Frank Eberhart, has been busy with the alterations and improvements and at present time some idea can be gained of the extensive remodeling. The dining room has been slightly shortened to give room for a sample room and a private dining room. The sample room is on Washington street with access from the street by a door, so that the cases of the traveling men can be most conveniently handled, and the room being a very light one will show samples to the best advantage.

The hotel from the top floor to the first floor has been changed in many ways. Small rooms have been cut in two so as to furnish convenient bath rooms for adjoining rooms. The hotel will have fifteen rooms with connecting bath room and every modern convenience.

The rooms throughout the hotel are being repapered and painted, many iron and brass bedsteads are being added to the furnishings. Hundreds of dollars worth of new bedding, bed linen, blankets and other supplies is being added.

On the first floor the stairway on the east side of the lobby has been removed. The writing room will be finished in Mission style, the lobby in mahogany and the parlor in light green, new carpets put down, so that the entire entrance will be given a new fresh and different effect.

The proprietor has gone through the property with the idea of removing everything in the nature of an eyesore and the dark paper and finish which has predominated will give way to light paper, finish and effect so as to make attractive and inviting this well known hostelry.

The proprietor says he is back at the Eagle Hotel to stay and will leave nothing undone to put it in a first-class, up-to-date shape, and will seek to maintain at the highest standard the prestige it has enjoyed for years. The changes and improvements will cost many thousands of dollars.

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

ABOUT ADVERTISING—NO. 4

The Hen and the Doorknob

By Herbert Kaufman

Once upon a time there was a fool hen who sat on a china doorknob for three weeks expecting to get a family. The only thing she did get was experience.

The advertising field is full of "china doorknob propositions"—examples of merchants who expect good newspapers to hatch money out of bad egg business, or who put sound nest eggs under the wrong "advertising hen."

There are three principles to follow in an advertising campaign: First of all, find a business that will stand advertising; secondly, find the newspaper that will make the advertising pay; thirdly, give the newspaper time to pay.

You can't start in to breed dollars in less time than it takes to hatch them any more than you can pull a hen off the nest before she has had a chance to incubate. In both cases you simply waste what has been invested. If you stop too soon you will get a rotten egg instead of a chicken.

Advertise something out of which you may reasonably expect returns, and when you have found what to advertise, take care that you place your copy in a newspaper that can turn the trick. Don't delude yourself with a china doorknob, and don't confuse a "rooster newspaper," which spends its time cock-a-loruming, for a "hen newspaper" that is too busy hatching out dollars to strut about crowing.

SOME NOTES ON FARMING

CAUGHT AT RECENT FARMER'S INSTITUTES IN COUNTY.

Many Helpful Suggestions on Many of the Perplexing Questions that Farmers are up Against

The following notes were taken at a recent farmer's institute and contain valuable suggestions to farmers: "Some of the Common Causes of Lameness in Horses and How They may be Prevented," was treated by Dr. M. E. Conard, of Westgrove, Pa., who among other things said, "Raising horses pays better than any other stock. We should produce our own teams. Horse flesh yields from 15 to 20 cents per lb., which is more than any other stock. If you want to buy a horse you want one with good eyes, good wind, good heart and good lungs. Don't take your old worn out mares to breed from, take the best mares you have and stallion should be of the very best, no mongrel and then stick to that horse and mare. A colt born in the fall and kept in barn or barnyard all winter in the spring its feet will turn up, which should not be. Feet should be kept level when young and growing.

"Interesting Incidents in a Two Year War Against Insects and Diseases of Plants," was told by Wm. H. Wolf of West Chester, Pa.—Had two years of experience but found out in that time how to manage these pests. The Beetle was the trouble in raising asparagus roots for sale. Could not be destroyed by common spraying as leaves are small and oily and would not retain the solution. Then tried cutting off the tops but then roots did not develop and had no plants for sale. We then attached pipes to a spring wagon in such position that the spray would strike plant from all sides, the solution used, was 3 lbs. arsenic of lead to 50 gal. water, this being successful in killing the pest. Have never detected any injury to fruit trees from using same preparation. Tried strong kerosene emulsion and it killed the trees. Had a lot of pear trees that had Fire Blight. I cut infected limbs off and found that I only spread the disease. Then tried an experiment to see if germs could be carried and found they could. I pruned the infected parts again, but after each cut put my knife into a sponge (carried in can on belt) saturated with carbolic acid which killed all germs on knife blade. Spraying pear trees with Bordeaux mixture retains the foliage and increases size of fruit. Foliage dropping too soon often causes small and immature fruit. The Keefer has a hard leathery leaf which seems to be almost immune from diseases. We then tried an experiment in spraying potatoes and found unsprayed rows yielded only one half number of bushels and exceedingly small.

"Prevention of Diseases Easier and Better Than Cure," was opinion of Dr. M. E. Conard, saying: If we attend to our animals as we should they would die of old age and not of diseases. Drive horse a long distance and let stand without blanket, irregularity of feeding, sometimes overworked and sometimes not worked enough, etc. No animal works so hard as the dairy cow. She works 365 days in a year and 24 hours in a day. Years ago all that was expected of the cow was to graze on the prairie and support one offspring a year using remainder of time to recuperate. Now that is a small part of her function. She is expected to do that, also to supply our needs with milk and butter and making a little profit beside. We are responsible for her diseases, which sometimes are hard to control. Give her good comfortable quarters where she can get plenty of good pure air, lots of light, clean water and have stables in cleanly condition, not festooned with cobwebs, etc. Floors should be cemented and kept clean and provision made for drainage of liquid. In traveling through the State I find few barns built to that end. Dark, dirty and poorly ventilated stables are not good for the dairy cow. Tuberculosis is much easier and more quickly contracted in such barns than clean ones, which has been proven by an experiment at State College. A barn should be so light that a person could stand in darkest part and read a newspaper. Windows should be so placed that they could be tilted and cause an upward current of fresh air. I use the stanchion and consider it a very comfortable fastening for a cow.

"Social Betterment of Farm Homes" was treated by Miss A. C. Baker as follows: I can see something coming and I think you see it too. Everything must be inspected. I am sure the time is not far off when we will have a system of inspection. The women have petitioned to President to organize a Bureau of Inspection in Washington which shall be presided over by a woman. I can see every home in the district and towns all numbered. We had a Burgess in West Chester who ordered all the cellars to be inspected and found some into which they would not venture without a light. I can see that a man and a woman will be sent into every home to inspect it and they will have a legal right to go all through the house. When all these things come about there will be hot and cold water in every house. Then when our children grow up they will never want to leave home except to make homes of their own. The time will come when our homes will be what they ought to be.

"Some Common Orchard and Garden Insects and How to Control Them," was subject of talk by Wm. H. Wolf, saying bees and other insects are a great help in destroying pests, such as scale on trees, vegetables, etc. Red clover could not be raised in Australia until they got the bumble bee. Don't know that we ought to say much about the scale, as you know all about it, main thing is to say thoroughly.

Among the chewing insects are the caterpillar and beetle, the scale sucks the sap from the trees and finally kills it, the penetration of the oil kills the scale. Tobacco extract sprinkled on the trees will kill aphids, codling is the worst thing on our trees. Arsenic of lead is best to destroy moth, it is better than paris green. Use 2 to 3 lbs. to 50 gal. of water, spray about the time petals are falling. The tree borer is the worst enemy of the apple tree, one way is to bank ground up around tree or wrap trunk of trees, but better examine and cut out with a hot iron wire up, some syringe the tree with sulphuric acid. Peach tree borer is different to the apple tree borer. Cabbage worm and white butterfly does a great amount of damage, arsenic of lead with some soap is a good remedy without any danger of poisoning to the consumer.

"Economic Use, Care and Protection of Barnyard Manure," by Paul A. Woodman. An immense loss in Pennsylvania is caused by not caring properly for our barnyard manure, the estimated value of the manure of each cow is $27 per year, many farmers are losing one-half by not caring for it. I have a stable large enough for seven cows, and cost about $7.00 for cement to cement floor, and that way will save a lot of money, as it is impossible to save all the liquid without a floor of this kind. I would advise using 40 lbs. phosphoric acid to a ton of manure which would greatly increase the value of the manure pile. Don't buy feed for manure value alone, take manure from stable direct to field, except when ground is wet. About 50 per cent. of the manure pile is lost by the liquid soaking out and running off, which could be prevented by a shed or if shed is too expensive, erect posts and cover with straw or cornfodder. Mix horse and cow manure together, and prefer spreading it on sod for two successive years, about six loads of one ton each to an acre. If hauled out immediately with phosphoric acid in it, one load is worth double the other. You want to do two things, increase the value of your farm and the products of your farm. I get best results by sowing grass seed about the first of September, I sow about 4 qts. clover to acre.

"Increasing Demand of Cities for Good Clean Milk," was considered by Dr. M. E. Conard. Cities are growing not only larger but smaller ones are needing more food and milk, territory for supplying food and milk has decreased, trucking has been more successful, and numerous parties have taken up that line in preference to dairying. Dealers in Phila. for the past five years have been looking up new territory for supply. A few years ago Pennsylvania railroad would not haul milk more than 70 miles, now they will haul for 300 miles or more. Milk must come from territory through which a railroad runs. Milk is a great disease germ carrier, and health authorities are looking into the milk supply. Milk in cities sells for eight cents per qt. There is more food value in a pound of milk than a pound of meat. A large proportion of city milk is fed to infants, 1-3 pt. of milk supply per head to city people on the average, there should be more milk consumed. We should try to make the people realize that milk is as cheap as any other food, and thus increase the demand. The need of absolute cleanliness was illustrated by fact of sixty cases of typhoid breaking out in Westgrove, the milk was all supplied by one concern, the well water became infected with germs, and in washing cans etc., germs were distributed to customers through the milk.

"The Clover Question" was discussed by Paul Woodman. Have raised satisfactory crops of clover for 3 yrs. We must know why and how we do things. Some soils need lime, not all however. Large quantities of lime unnecessary. Try liming on small portion of field to see if it is necessary. Climate does not effect clover. Fungus does not effect clover. Success is attributed to soil alone. Cattle can be fed cheaper by feeding clover. Fertility of ground is improved by clover furnishing nitrogen. If clover can be raised other crops can be successfully raised. From 20 to 25 bu. of lime at that is necessary for acre of land once in 4 or 5 years. Clay soil not desirable for clover unless mixed with humus to make it mellow. Sow rye and crimson clover in corn to turn under to add humus. There is 44 lbs. potash in 1 ton clover hay and as much in roots as tops. Should use 8 per cent. acid and 10 per cent. potash in fertilizers. Doesn't pay to sell clover, it should be fed on the farm. 3-4 of potash in clover goes back to manure. Must take care of manure to avoid loss of potash. If clover is sowed in the spring it should be sowed early before frost is all out of the ground, when ground is in "honey comb" condition. Birds will eat clover seed if not concealed in crevices of earth. Clover seed will keep if kept in a dark cool place. Buy the best seed possible. Test seed before sowing, 75 per cent. should germinate in testing. Plow generally from 4 to 6 inches. Cultivate well and get a good seed bed. Soil with plenty humus will hold moisture much better than soil lacking in humus. I think clover will add more to the fertility of soil than rye or rape when plowed under. Vetch is good to add humus. Sow 8 to 10 qts. crimson clover seed per acre. Cultivate corn after sowing seed.

"Ten Years Experience in Practical Farming," was told of by Miss A. C. Baker. I have 168 acre farm in Chester Co. Men should look well to the insuring of their business so that their families will not lose the most valuable of their inheritance. A well equipped business is more valuable than money to your descendants. Men should confide their business with their families to prepare them for the future should death call the head of the family away. Planting an orchard is a good way to insure a farm. $1000 net profit was made per yr. on 15 acres of bearing orchard by a certain lady manager. On "The Education of our Boys and Girls," Miss A. C. Baker said: I am going to say a word for the boys and girls of Adams Co. My father was one of the largest land owners in the township and after having completed the course in our common schools my father sent me away to different Boarding Schools and after an absence of 8 years I came home. I then taught school 8 years in Phila. and by this time my father's health failed. We had a farm of 168 acres and could not dispose of it, consequently I had to take the farm. I hired a man and his family. His children's schooling was neglected and they were growing up in ignorance. The Twp. elected me School Director and I then took the matter into hands and saw that the children in the Twp. were sent to school, for I know there is no place you can do more for your children than right in the school room. Am sorry you only have a 7 mo. term here. They elected me a second term. I then began to wonder why it was that father had to pay out so much money in tax and after all had to send his children away to school at an expense of $1000, and I concluded to call the people of the Twp. together and consult over this matter and also had a lawyer and some others to meet with us. After our consultation I asked the lawyer to frame a law to allow our children in Rural Districts to be sent to the High Schools. The law was framed and sent to our Legislature and was passed. It is because I am so strongly in favor of establishing High Schools in your county that I am here.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil is the means of life and enjoyment of life: thousands: men, women and children.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food when you hate it and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

Letting the Orchards Die.

Chas. E. Klein, a Maryland State Inspector and State Forest warden, says:

"It is a pitiful sight to see the fruit trees of Frederick County, Md. dying by the thousands through wilful neglect when apples are selling at from one to two dollars a bushel, and if you recall the peach market of last summer, they sold for from one to four dollars a bushel. Other fruits found a ready market, and with all this, many of our farmers sit idly and mourn the loss of the trees killed by the San Jose scale, without doing anything to prevent their injury. You frequently have heard the Bible quotation used. 'Am, I my brother's keeper?' How many of you are keeping an Osage Orange hedge, with limbs probably 15 feet, literally covered with San Jose scale? This fence acts as a hot-bed or breeding place for scale. How many have wilfully neglected orchards by the side of your neighbor, who has tried to prevent the destruction of his trees by spraying? Many persons sit and smoke the pipe or do nothing all the week and go 'way up on the front pews in the church on Sunday, and on their way home will say, 'Didn't the preacher hit those fellows right and left?' but never think any was intended for themselves. Let me tell you people, the law of right to your fellow-man, and the laws of the State of Maryland, demand the spraying of hedge fences and infected fruit-trees, and all law-abiding citizens, from a principle of right, abide by the laws, both common and divine. Our State has spent quite a little sum of money in experimenting with different solutions, and believe the lime and sulphur solution to be a remedy to control the San Jose scale. Washington County is getting this solution by the carload. Are we going to continue to let our fruit trees go and die?

Mrs. HARRY BUNTY, McSherrystown, filled a box with saw dust and feathers, placing a hatching of eggs in the feathers and placed the box on a radiator and in due time the chicks appeared.

KATRINE

By Elinor Macartney Lane

the Author of Nancy Stair.

KATRINE is the first novel which Mrs. Lane has published since her brilliant story of "Nancy Stair." Those who have read both books agree in recognizing KATRINE as the greater successor of a great romance. In KATRINE, as in "Nancy Stair," a beautiful, magnetic woman takes the leading part. This is a romance of picturesque love-making, of separation, of the woman's triumph through her natural gifts, of a man's awakening and his battle with realities, and, finally, it is a romance not only of a woman's achievement, but of an all-conquering love.

Howell, of Howell's American School, Havana, Cuba. "On the night of February 3rd our baby was taken sick with a very severe cold; the next day was worse and the following night his condition was desperate. He could not lie down and it was necessary to have him in the arms every moment. Even then his breathing was difficult. I did not think he would live until morning. At last I thought of my mother's remedy, Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which we gave, and it afforded prompt relief, and now three days later, he has fully recovered. Under the circumstances I would not hesitate a moment in saying that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that only, saved the life of our dear little boy." For sale by The Peoples Drug Store.

THE ORIGINAL LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE CONTAINING HONEY AND TAR

Sally's Iron. In Joseph's case, some of her associates of the stage, Ellen Terry, in McClure's Magazine, tells of her dresser, Sarah Hoffman. She had an extraordinarily good mind, writes Miss Terry, and was ready to grasp each new play as it came along as a serious and entirely different field of operations. She was extremely methodical and only got flustered once in a blue moon. When we went to America and made the acquaintance of this wonderful thing, a "one night stand," she was as precise and particular about having everything nice and in order for me as if we were going to stay in the town a month. Down went my next square of white druggist. All the lights in my dressing room were arranged as I wished. Everything was unpacked and ironed. The day when I came into some American theater to dress I found Sally nearly in tears. "What's the matter with you, Sally?" I asked. "I haven't had a morsel to heat all day, dear, and I can't eat my iron." "Eat your iron, Sally? What do you mean?" "Oh, am I to iron all this, dear?" wailed my faithful Sally, picking up my Nance Oldfield apron and a few other trifles. "It won't get hot!" Until then I really thought that Sally was being sardonic about an iron as a substitute for victuals. Telephone Manners. Do telephones lead to politeness or otherwise? When they first came into use the answer to this question would have been emphatically in the negative, but now that they are almost universally prevalent, an era of good manners and "thank you's" seems to be in full swing. In some communities it is not even polite to quarrel over the telephone, although the two women who took part in the following conversation came very hot. "Hello! Is this Mrs. Weston?" "Yes." "This is your next door neighbor Mrs. Lawrence. I thought you might be interested to know that at the present moment your son Thomas is sitting on one of the sheets which are bleaching on my lawn and is building a large pile of mud on it." "Oh, thank you, Mrs. Lawrence!" exclaimed the mother. "And may I return the favor by informing you that your setter Rab has just rooted up two new rosebushes and that he seems to be chewing the buds?" "Oh, indeed! Thank you! Goodbye!" "Not at all. Thank you! Goodbye!" Tired of Him. At a trial in Scotland a lady got into the witness box to be examined, when the following conversation took place between her and the opposing counsel: Counsel--How old are you? Miss Jane--Oh, well, sir, I am an unmarried woman and I think it right to answer that question. The Judge--Oh, yes; answer the gentleman. How old are you? Miss Jane--Well-a-weel, I am fifty. Counsel--Are you not more? Miss Jane--Well, I am sixty. The inquisitive lawyer still further asked if she had any hopes of getting married, to which Miss Jane replied: "Well, sir, I wanna tell a lee. I hlna lost hope yet," scornfully adding, "But I widna marry you, for I am sick and tired o' your palaver already." Psychology of Broken Jaws. It might be a bit of a strange fact, but you would be astonished to see the broken jaws which are presented at free institutions on holidays--election day, New Year's day and the Fourth of July. A great number of fractured jaws are the result of quarrels among the very lowest classes. It surprises me that the number of broken jaws is not on the increase on account of the heated newspaper discussions that we are constantly having on various topics of the day. It has been said that were it not for the month nine-tenths of the gossip and the mischief of the world would be prevented. And very often were it not for the month there would be no broken jaws--D. B. Breundlich in New York Medical Journal. Shooting Stars. When a shooting star breaks into flame in our atmosphere the residuum of the combustion remains in the air and can be found in what is known as atmospheric dust. The virgin snow of the polar regions was often seen to be spotted with traces of dust which contained particles of iron. Like particles are found on church towers and elsewhere. Among the minute bodies that dance in the sun's rays there are certainly particles of shooting stars. Showing Him How. "You young scoundrel," said the father, seizing his disobedient son by the hair, "I'll show you how to treat your mother!" And he gave him several bangs on the ears and then shook him until his hair began to fall out. Youthful Assurance. "When I was your age," said the stern parent, "I was accumulating money of my own." "Yes," answered the graceless youth, "but don't you think the public was easier then than it is now?"--Washington Star. The Final Shock. Patient--Doctor, I don't think I can use the battery any more. Will it be necessary to shock me again? Doctor--Only once more. I'll send in my bill tomorrow. Wise men read very sharply all your private history in your look and gait and behavior.--Emerson.

A Home For Harriett.

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Harriett was a peculiar name for a cat; but, then, Harriett was a peculiar cat. Roger Webster surveyed her quizzically as she lay in the sun on the boarding house steps.

"Any feline but Harriett," he declared, "would at least feel mildly perturbed at the prospect of losing a home and a mistress."

"You'd think so, wouldn't you?" answered Bessie Roberts. Bessie was very pretty and wholly charming, but at the present time a little frown of anxiety wrinkled her forehead.

"I simply don't know what to do about it," she continued. "The lady says that I've got to get rid of Harriett, and I can't find any other place so convenient to my work where I can live. I suppose—I suppose," she added wistfully, "that I shouldn't be so fond of her over Harriett, but in some way she seems the only link between today and the other life. With all the people gone and Harriett some other place in this big city I'd feel too awfully, miserably lonely."

Roger saw that Bessie was not to be teased. "Poor, lonesome kiddie," he thought. And, leaning over, he stroked Harriett very carefully. Harriett arched her back, purred and rose slowly to her feet. Then, turning round, she jumped squarely into Roger's lap.

"What a sensible cat!" Roger smiled at the girl. "You see, she likes me very much. If only every one—that is, some one—liked me very, very much."

He glanced at the girl shyly. A little flush had spread over Bessie's face, and she kept her eyes fixed steadfastly on the cat.

"I only wish they allowed cats in my boarding house," he continued. "That's one of the troubles of living in a boarding house—you don't get the real, simple pure comforts of home. Now, I'll tell you what we'll do," he cried, jumping to his feet. "We'll take Harriett with us and go on a tour of inspection in this neighborhood. We'll hunt up a nice, quiet street where there are little cottages instead of big houses, and when we see a nice 'homey,' comfortable housewife in one of the homes we'll go in and ask her to keep Harriett for us."

"For us?" queried the girl, with a little laugh.

"Sure," continued Roger, unabashed. "You don't think Harriett belongs to you alone, do you? I think Harriett would resent any such idea as that. She likes me too well, and I like her too well. No, indeed, I have a minority interest in this cat."

The girl laughed and rose to her feet.

"Well, come along," she said. "I suppose it's the best thing we can do, as it's Sunday afternoon we ought to be able to find lots of the people's home."

Roger helped the girl down the steps, and, calling to Harriett, they walked down the street. Harriett, sleek and black, followed decorously enough until they reached a small, rather obscure cross street.

Roger happened to be looking back as they crossed this street and discovered Harriett very sedately ambling down the little thoroughfare.

"Come here, Harriett," Roger called, and then whistled to the cat.

Harriett paid not the slightest attention, but continued her sedate way away from Roger and the girl. Bessie called, but even to her Harriett paid no attention.

"Well, I declare!" cried the girl in surprise. "Harriett has always been peculiar, but she has never acted like this before."

"Let's follow her and see where she goes," cried Roger. "Perhaps she's looking for a home or perhaps she has a home already picked out."

"All right," said Bessie.

They turned back and hastened after Harriett, who was now about a fourth of a block ahead. The street was a quiet one. Neither Roger nor Bessie was familiar with it and had paid but little attention to it in previous times.

Now, however, they glanced curiously at the small, rather cozy houses which lined the sides. Although erected within recent years, they were almost old fashioned by comparison with the big buildings on the more important streets near by. It seemed as if the little street was a mere eddy in the swirling life and progress around it.

"Oh, I like this street," cried Bessie. "It appeals to me, too," declared Roger, with conviction.

For several blocks they followed Harriett, who continued her slow course. At last they saw the cat turn into a gate in a charming stone fence, and they hastened after her.

The fence enclosed a cozy little cottage, well set back from the sidewalk. In the yard were a couple of trees, a flower bed or two and a delightful path, bordered by a low hedge, which ran up to the spacious veranda.

The little home had such a piquant, happy look that involuntarily both Roger and Bessie smiled as they gazed at it.

Then Roger laughed.

"Look who's on the veranda!" he cried.

Bessie looked closely and gasped. There was Harriett, curled up tightly in the blaze of the sun, as if she had been in the habit of lying there just like that day in and day out for years.

"Well," cried the girl, "Harriett seems to be perfectly satisfied with the place."

"Yes," acknowledged Roger. "I could be happy, too, in a home like this if I had the right person to share it with me." He looked directly at the girl. For a fleeting moment her eyes met his, and then, startled and with her face flushed, she ran up the path to the veranda.

"Why," she exclaimed as she reached the first step, "there's no one living here—the place is for rent!" She pointed to a sign that had slipped from its position in a window.

"Why, so it is!" cried Roger. "Harriett can't stay here, of course—unless—unless—" He looked at Bessie with a smile full of meaning.

"Of course she can't stay here!" cried the girl, making a grab for the cat. "I wish we could find a home for her, though, in a nice little place like this."

She caught the cat up in her arms.

"How Harriett would enjoy the place," mused Roger. "Look, there's a big open fireplace in the front room, and there's a nice, sunny place where we could have our piano."

"We?" gasped the girl. With her face aflame and with the cat clasped tightly she ran off down the path.

But Harriett, who had been purring very contentedly in her mistress's arms, now became very angry. She snarled and dug her claws into Bessie's coat until the girl was forced to put her down.

"Why, Harriett!" she exclaimed in pained astonishment. "What's the matter with her? She never acted that way before."

"I'm sure I don't know," replied Roger. "But look what she's doing now. Harriett may be a very peculiar cat, but she certainly knows a good thing when she sees it."

He pointed at Harriett, who, on being released, had torn frantically back up the path to the veranda. On the veranda she walked around in a circle once or twice and then curled herself up on the floor in almost the identical spot and almost the identical manner as before.

"Well, I never!" cried the girl. She hurried back to the veranda and, sitting down on the top step, began petting the cat. Roger lost no time in sitting down beside Bessie.

"Dear!" he cried as he managed to imprison one of her hands. "Dear heart, why not follow the road Harriett has pointed out? Why not let this dear little house be Harriett's home and at the same time a real home for you and me? Come, dear, it only needs a minister and a marriage license to make us all three happy."

"Oh, I will; I will!" she cried suddenly, throwing her arms about Roger's neck. "We'll none of us be lonely again!"

Harriett, with a sigh of content that appealed to the couple as almost human, rose from her spot and, purring loudly, rubbed her side against the arm with which Roger was clasping the girl.

The Voice of Fame.
An American author of some note was passing a summer in New Hampshire. One day he received word that a distinguished Englishman was visiting in the country town and would like to call upon the author, of whom, he added in his note requesting an audience, he had heard.

Somewhat flattered, the author wondered to himself who had spoken to the distinguished Englishman about him.

"Some Oxford dignitary doubtless," he reflected pleasantly, "or possibly some London publisher or critic," and he awaited the stranger's arrival with interest.

"So you had heard of me," he ventured after the usual greetings had been spoken. "Well, that is odd. Might I ask who?" But his visitor interrupted him.

"Oh, yes!" he said. "I heard all about you before I got here. The portrait of the chairman told me that you were the very man to come to ask for the best route to Niagara and the best place to stay."

Paying Visits in Australia.
In Australia a month's visit to a country house would be nothing. Two months—three months—six months—as long as you like would not be considered too long, other things being equal. Nobody thinks of dates. To write and invite you from the 15th to the 30th would be rude. You are asked to stay as long as you like. Or else you ask yourself to stay as long as you like. Or even—to face all the contingencies—you neither ask nor are asked. You simply go. And, having arrived, you remain for the one unfailing commodity of an Australian country house is welcome. Everything else may give out. If you stay long enough there is sure to be a time when there are no servants, no milk, no vegetables, no meat, not mention, or even no water, but the thoughts of guests going away will never enter the minds of the host and his hostess. Good nature, gaiety, informality—these are the leading notes of life in every Australian country house. London Globe.

The Old Trade.
"It'm!" ejaculated the governor as he perused the card of the newly arrived prisoner. "I see you are a commercial traveler?"

The man assented.

"That presents something of a difficulty. You know, my man, everybody here has got to work. Now, what trade will you take up? You can be a mat-maker, a tailor or a shoemaker. Perhaps you'd like to make brushes or baskets?"

"Excuse me, sir," interrupted the prisoner, "but I think I'd much rather stick to my old trade."

"Well," said the grave and reverend seigneur, "we always like prisoners to work at their own trades when possible. But—"

"Oh, that's shabby!" interrupted the prisoner eagerly. "I should like the chance of going round selling on commission the things the other fellows make."—London Scraps.

Got the Best of Carlyle.
The Rev. Thomas Alexander, a Presbyterian minister, long resident in Chelsea and well known as a brother Scot, was most anxious to know Carlyle, but had no opportunity of getting an introduction to him. One day in the King's road he saw Carlyle coming in his direction and took advantage of the opportunity by going up to the sage and saying, "Thomas Carlyle, I believe?" Carlyle's reply was, "Tom Alexander, I know!" They became good friends, and later Mr. Alexander wrote to Carlyle for a subscription toward a school building fund, and Carlyle wrote back a refusal in doggerel, whereupon Mr. Alexander replied that if he did not send him £5 he would sell his poetry to a collector or publish it. The £5 was at once forthcoming.

Hopelers.
Martha, endeavoring to instruct a would-be housekeeper in the mysteries of pudding making, was overheard.

"Yer jes' takes some bread on!"

"But how much bread, Martha?"

"Oh, jes' what yer needs, Miss Min, en den yer pats yo' milk on it!"

"And bow much milk, Martha?"

"Well, yer mus' use yer judgment 'bout dat, Miss Min."

"But I haven't any judgment, Martha."

"Well, de Lord he's yer, Miss Min, 'cause I can't!"—Travel Magazine.

A Pointer.
"You can always tell an actor whose season has not been prosperous," said Mr. Stormington Barnes.

"How?"

"He won't talk with you five minutes without saying that the public doesn't appreciate art."—Washington Star.

You've Met Him.
"How do you like your new neighbor?"

"Oh, he's the kind of man that saves his longest story to tell while we are holding the front door open for him to go."

Right on the Job.
Indignant Citizen (to office boy)—Your confounded paper had an outrageous attack on me this morning, and— Office Boy (briskly)—Yessir, How many copies will you have?

To Borrow.
Grimsey—What is the psychological moment? Cholley—It is when you get a tip on a dead sure thing and do not happen to have the money to back it up.—New Orleans World.

ECZEMA LODGES IN THE SKIN.

Not a Blood Disease—Cured by Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

For many years eczema was supposed to be a blood disease and was erroneously treated as such, but now the best authorities agree that eczema is only a skin disease and must be cured through the skin. The eminent skin specialist, Dr. D. D. Dennis, first discovered the eczema germ and his discovery was quickly taken up in both Germany and France.

To kill the eczema germ and at the same time heal the skin, Dr. Dennis compounded oil of wintergreen, thymol glycerine, etc. The remedy is a liquid, not a mere salve, hence it sinks right into the pores of the skin. Washing with this oil of wintergreen compound seems to take the itch away at once; soon the scales drop away and disease disappears. The Peoples Drug Store. The prescription has now been used so long as to have proven its absolute merit and we do not hesitate to express our confidence in D. D. Dennis' prescription as used with D. D. Soap.
